Pat

I'm nominating my mom because she has been my teacher, best friend, counselor, provider, and protector. She was a single mother raising both my sister and I as well as holding two jobs to pay for everything. She has had a few health problems but despite it she started a support group and helped others even though she had her own that she was trying to deal with.

She always taught us values growing up, right from wrong, and to be nice to everyone no matter what they've done. She's been there for me listening to me rant and rave about life and giving me advice to help me through. She's always patient and kind even to complete strangers. She has always provided me with everything I needed love, nurturing, clothes, a safe home, and money when I was a little low. She has been my protector through a lot from bad relationships to my health issues that I've been going through for the past couple years.

I've never been able to get her a really great gift and I think this would be the best gift ever and it couldn't go to a more deserving person then my mom. I love you mom and all the support you've given me through my life!
